FIVE SAVED BY A MIRACLE

Jeaneville Miners Alive After Nineteen Days' Imprisonment.

JEANEVILLE, Pa., Feb. 24.—Joy and wonder are depicted today over last night's discovery that five of the men imprisoned in the Jeaneville mine since Feb. 4 had been found alive.

It seemed past belief when the word was first sent up the shaft that men could have survived nineteen days in such dark, close quarters, with neither pure air nor food, but now it is a fact. The five men, who were found alive, were John Thomas, William H. Thomas, John Thomas, William H. Thomas, and John Thomas.

The men were found in a breast of the north pitch of the mine. They were lying close together, and there was no evidence of any effort of the men to escape by any means.

Superintendent McFarlane would not talk for publication, as he was too busy caring for the men. As he came up the slope for a moment he had just time to say: "Their story will all be gladly given you later if you only give us time now to make use of the means that a generous Providence has placed at our disposal to bring the men around again to life."

The first indication that men still alive were in the mine was heard at about 9 o'clock last night, when the leaders of the rescue party heard sounds from an abandoned portion of the mine.

The sounds seemed caused by knocking or tapping against the ribs, and the experienced miners were positive nothing but human power could cause them. Further investigation proved that the sounds were made by some of the imprisoned men.

It was some time before the rescuers could overcome their astonishment and bring them to a sense of action. Steps to reach the imprisoned men were taken, but it was found that the black camp, which was present in three galleries, prevented the rescuers from doing so.

At last the rescuers were enabled to proceed. At 10 o'clock they had got down to the level where the men were, and at 11 o'clock they were able to speak with them. From that time on the men were able to talk with the rescuers.

The men were found in an overhead passage way and could not possibly be reached until the last gallery was reached. Every effort was exerted and preparations for rescuing them were made.

The rescuers continued and grew more distressed as the rescuers were enabled to proceed. At 10 o'clock they had got down to the level where the men were, and at 11 o'clock they were able to speak with them.

From the distressed utterances of the rescued miners to-day it was gathered that the rescue party had been very successful. The rescuers were able to speak with the men, and the men were able to talk with the rescuers.

CHOSE DEATH TO SUFFERING.

Sick and Out of Work, Goodlander Hanged Himself.

Jacob Goodlander, a Russian clockmaker, committed suicide at 9 o'clock this morning by hanging himself to the transom of a bedroom in his home, at West 125th Street.

Goodlander, with his wife and two daughters, occupied four squalid rooms on the first floor of the house, which is a big tenement. Since July last he had been unable to work, owing to an attack of dropsy, which confined him to his bed.

He suffered considerable pain last night and a few minutes before 9 o'clock this morning he asked his wife to go to a neighboring drug store for some medicine, with which to allay his pain.

While his wife was out Goodlander got a level, one end of which he tied to the transom of a door, and the other end he fastened to his own neck. He then climbed out of the window and hanged himself.

When Mrs. Goodlander came into her room some minutes later she was horrified to find her husband hanging from the door.

Once before Goodlander tried to end his life, but he was saved by his wife. He was then taken to a hospital, but he died there.

Dr. Gilder talks to the Medical Society of Koch's Remedy.

Dr. Paul Gilder, of the Pasteur Institute in this city, has taken a bold stand on the Koch lymph cure.

The doctor read a paper at the meeting of the Medical Society of the County of New York last night, in which he declared that the lymph, instead of curing, augmented the disease.

He said the lymph did not possess the quality and power that Dr. Koch claimed for it. He asserted, he said, were based on the result of experiments made on men and animals.

Dr. Gilder qualified his statement, however, by saying that if the lymph was used with some other remedy it might be some benefit to the profession.

Autopsy Shows that Mr. Withers Died of Meningitis.

Remains that William R. Withers, the engraver, of 108 Quilman Street, Newark, who was found in a dying condition Sunday morning, was the victim of sand-bagging, were not substantiated by the autopsy made to-day by Surgeon Benjamin, of the Newark Hospital.

Both physicians are satisfied that Withers died of meningitis.

He was not robbed, as was reported.

American Loan Stockholders Get Another Chance.

Efforts to rehabilitate the bankrupt American Loan and Trust Company have progressed so favorably within the past two days that Supr. Preston, of the Banking Department, has consented to give the stockholders another chance to put the company on its feet.

Accordingly, he has induced the Attorney-General to postpone his motion for the appointment of a receiver for the company, which was to have come up this morning in the Supreme Court, Chambers, until next Friday morning.

The proceedings for the reorganization of the company, said Mr. Preston this morning, "are now at a point where there appears to be some hope of success, and under the circumstances I think the stockholders should be allowed sufficient time to complete their plans without hurrying them."

"This is the reason for the adjournment, I understand that the stockholders are in conference most of the time, either at their offices or in those of the capitalists who are willing to furnish the money to put the company on its feet again."

"I expect to hear from them from time to time during the day, as the plans are developed, but cannot say now whether a definite plan of reorganization will be submitted to-day or not. I have given them until Friday on that account."

Supr. Preston and Examiner Cahill are still in possession of the offices of the American Loan and Trust Company and the present officers are nominally in charge.

James A. Blair, the son of John L. Blair, the New Jersey millionaire, who is generally talked of as the probable successor of G. D. Baldwin, if the company is reorganized, would have nothing to say this morning in regard to the matter.

The Brooklyn stockholders, who own about one-quarter of the $1,000,000, have placed their interests in the hands of John G. Jenkins, Mrs. A. R. Dray and Morris May. They are willing to consent to a reduction of the capital stock to $500,000 and have signed an agreement to that effect.

Russell Sage, who is at the bottom of the reorganization scheme, was in conference with the members of this committee and other stockholders most of the morning.
